

New Zealand Managed Isolation: A Training and Experimentation Ground. For Promotion of Irrational Fear. Expansion of NZ Tyranny. How Far Can They Go and What People Will Accept

The events described in this article are from May 28 through June 11, 2021. This experience was from Anthony S. who is the author of the document.

In this document, when I make reference to the "virus", it is with the understanding that the methods of detection of this virus, are unreliable through the PCR test. There is a known high false positive rate with this type of test, when the amplification level is above approximately 25. And that this virus, may never have existed since we have heard that it has not been isolated, or may not be in widespread existence any longer and may have diminished significantly, or may not exist any longer. It is not the purpose of this article, to be making any kind of conclusions, but I want to make it clear that it is important to question what we are being told.

I do recognize that early in this virus/illness situation which started to hit a peak around March/April 2020, that some people in the world were getting ill with a respiratory illness. So I do not deny, the existence of some condition which has created a respiratory illness. I do not deny the existence of viruses or something like them which can cause illness.

I arrived into New Zealand, May 28 late at night, at about 2 AM. There was a very lengthy procedure at the airport to go through various check-in procedures including new procedures, related to a health type check-in and questioning.

We were taken by bus, to the Novotel hotel in Ellerslie Auckland. So far everything was fine, although the whole process, is/was very authoritarian. New Zealand police were present at the initial health check-in at the airport. Masks were required. And I cannot breathe well through a mask.

When we got to the hotel, late at night, the bus was boarded and immediately we are given various instructions and orders to follow from a Navy person in the NZ defense forces.

They told us to get off, and wanted us all distanced from each other. There were circles we had to stand on. When I contemplated, this whole procedure, it reminded me, of the arrival of new recruits in the United States, to a Marine Corps recruiting depot for boot camp. So this whole thing had a boot camp type of feel to it. Especially being, we arrived in the middle of the night. This is how new recruits arrive at boot camp. I am not a Marine. I have only observed videos of this, and I have been at a Marine Corps recruit depot in the United States as a guest.

We were told to get our luggage and bring it into the lobby area. We are then guided through various posts, greeted by other defense forces personnel and given more instructions, asked questions, just like we are being checked into boot camp.

This whole process is very dominating. There are New Zealand defense forces people around. There are airport security people around. There can be no doubt in my mind, that this is a method in order to get us to be obedient to orders and to have us conform. Just thinking about it now, it gives me a very awful feeling.

For some additional background, I came from Fiji. I was there about a 1.5 months. I also did quarantine there for two weeks, at a resort although that situation was very different. I had a total of four deep nasal swabs, related to that trip. All of them negative. I can explain the experience of quarantine at the Fiji resort, but it was nothing like what I experienced in Auckland. It was not a bad or harsh or threatening experience. The weather was warm, I had a yard to go out to, I could be in the sunlight, anytime I wanted. I did not require a mask within my own premises and outside in my yard. I had a small private pool as well.

That is not to say that the usual arrival quarantine, outside of a resort, in Fiji is easy. It probably could be similar to New Zealand but I do not know.

I learned quickly, that they wanted to do a deep nasal swab test on the first day. I thought only two tests were required. But now I learned that there are three of them. One on the first day, another one on day 3 and then another one on day 12.

I did not want to undergo three tests. I already had four of them in Fiji. So I called them and challenged them on the legalities of doing the first test. Eventually I came to realize, that it was required based on the current situation in Fiji and the current "rules" in NZ regarding this. They said though that I could do an oral test which also includes a non-deep nasal swab in each nostril.

So that is what I was prepared to do (The oral swab/light nasal swab), but then the nurse who was going to do this, talked me out of it and said really the deep nasal swab is easier. I had them do the deep nasal swab, and there was little incident with it. These are uncomfortable, but so far I have not had any lasting effects of these tests. I know these tests are not without risk and I am concerned with all of this repeated testing. It really is horrible.

The food at the managed isolation facility, I would rate as generally not the quality that I require. In some cases it is definitely not healthy. I am a vegan. I asked for vegan food. Almost every day they would bring something that was equivalent of a soda pop, but not quite as harsh. Sometimes they would bring cupcakes. None of this to me is healthy. The meals I received did not have sufficient protein.

Even though I could order food from Countdown, I had no ability to prepare the food because I had no kitchen. So the whole food situation was very frustrating. I did get some meals ordered and delivered from nearby restaurants. But still this was not meeting the nutritional requirements that I normally have.

We are allowed to go outside, twice a day for 30 minute walks. These have to be prearranged. We have to call the security desk to arrange for this. If we are late with calling, with making this arrangement, we can miss out on a walk. That has happened multiple times. In general they need to be made about 16 hours ahead of time to be on the safe side. Or if you miss a walk then you would only be able to do one walk in a day. One day I had to start work at 2 AM in the morning, and continued working, until about 6 AM and needed to get back to sleep. The walk was early at 7:30 AM and I was still asleep at the time of the walk. So I was not able to go on that walk and there was no other walk until 8:30 PM in the nighttime.

One time when I was outside walking, it began to rain. The security people told us to come in below the sheltered area by the lobby. The alleged reason was that our masks would get wet and this would be some kind of a health issue. This made no sense to me at all. Additionally my mask was not getting wet and I had a hood that extended over the mask. I do have good outdoor gear.

I continued to walk, and a security person, told me to come in. I said what if I do not comply. I said my mask is not getting wet. They called another security person out and they said I need to come in. I said again what if I do not comply, my mask is not getting wet. A third security person came, and told me that I need to go in from the rain. I said what if I do not comply. At this time, they said they need to bring the issue to the base commander. I said let us bring it the base commander. I want to discuss the situation with them. This made no sense to me about going in from the rain.

So the base commander came out, and this consisted of a New Zealand police person, and a New Zealand defense forces person in the Army. The police, noticed that my mask had tiny droplet on it. I said that probably was from me touching it since my hand was wet from the rain.

They said that these are the rules, to go in from the rain, and the rules need to be followed. I said well will I have another 30 minutes to go for a walk, and they said yes that can be arranged something to that effect.

The New Zealand police said that they did not want to escalate the situation. Ok fine. I was not going to escalate it either.

The New Zealand defense forces person, was sympathetic to the situation they know that it was hard having all of these restrictions, and he described a story, where he was locked down fully for two weeks, early in this pandemic and could not go outside at all. Ok, but still the whole thing does not make sense to me about the mask getting wet.

So anyway, I eventually came in because I had a sufficient walk by that time.

I want to also say that a day or two later, some people said I was a "hero", for standing up to this situation and was happy that I continued to walk, and disregard the security.

Another person, also agreed with my perspective on things regarding this whole quarantine situation.

Since this experience, I would actually be paying more attention to the moisture on a mask and I noticed, that after a 30 minute walk, there would be moisture and very obvious droplets, on the inside of a mask just from my breath as compared to the very tiny trace amounts, on the outside of the mask during the walk in the rain. This seemed like almost 100 times greater moisture buildup just from my breath. This was not related to the rain at all.

I did an experiment where I took one of these is masks that they require that we wear and I made it like in a cup shape and I put it under the water faucet in the bathroom. This was using the outside of the mask to receive the water although it did not matter. What I found, is that once I filled it with water, the water did not seep through to the other side at all. And then I spilled the water out, and the water completely beaded off the side of the mask holding the water. I then touched the outside of the mask where the water was, it was dry to the touch. It was very clear that these are completely wet proof and water resistant masks.

Totally water resistant. So it is clear whoever made this rule about not walking in the rain because the masks are going to get wet, does not realize that these are wet proof masks, or they have some other agenda. No doubt they have some other agenda. And furthermore, because the mask is in a vertical position when being worn, it is not going to have much water accumulate on it.

People need to ask the hard questions here. There are absolutely senseless stupid rules being created by tyrants, in order to dominate and control and it is wrong.

Everyone outside, was wearing a mask including the security and also the children. Only the very young children, were not wearing masks. But children that look like they were five or six years old were wearing masks. None of this made sense to me at all. There is open airflow outside. And masks are known to be ineffective with disease transmission in this particular context.

When I was in Fiji, I had an ear infection, and I was still in the process of recovering when I came to New Zealand. Although the infection had cleared, but there still was some lingering inflammation somewhere around the ear. Before I came, I said that I wanted to see a doctor and was told, this could be arranged since there is a medical team on site.

When I asked to see a doctor, about this because I wanted them to look in my ear with an otoscope, they sent a nurse, to gather some notes and take a picture of my ear. A doctor called and said that really there is nothing they can do because they simply cannot come to the facility. The only thing possible would be to take me to a hospital but that is a major big deal for them. They said if the condition gets worse let them know.

Fortunately I was fine, and wanting to have the ear examination was just a precaution. The condition did not get worse.

So it is clear, that there is no health care being provided at the facility unless you are very sick enough to be taken to a hospital. I suppose if someone needs a prescription refilled that can be done. But basically there is no healthcare provided.

Once again this whole situation felt like being in a prison. On the last day when I was walking outside, a family from Europe, who I was talking to said that this facility was a "penitentiary". That was their wording. So certainly my view is not isolated.

Every day, someone would come to our room, and take our temperature and ask us if we had various symptoms.

When the nurse Rosalynn came to my room one day (the morning of June 2, 2021), they asked if I had various symptoms, and I said no. They asked if I have any other symptoms or concerns. I mentioned I have a headache, which is not unusual for me to have a headache at times due to not having the same sleep patterns, or not getting enough sleep. That night I did not get enough sleep because I had to be up early. Sometimes I get a headache when eating certain foods. Or when not having a meal for an extended time. This was just a headache for a few hours. When I said I had a headache, Rosalynn took away my blue bracelet, that allows me to go outside. Essentially putting me immediately into solitary confinement.

I explained to her this is just a normal headache and nothing to be concerned with. She did not care after I mentioned the headache. She became visibly fearful. She said stay in the room.

I called, the nurses station, and spoke at different times to two different people. I expressed this is just a normal headache and it will go away and that I need my blue bracelet back. They said someone will come regarding this. When I spoke the second time to them, after resting for about half an hour the headache was substantially gone. I told them that. They did not care. They said someone will be coming to the room regarding the headache symptom.

Someone did come later to take my temperature again, heart rate, and blood pressure. All of that was normal. By then, the headache was gone. Nobody cared.

At some point they said asymptomatic swab would have to be taken. I did not refuse because I wanted to get my blue bracelet back so I could go outside for walks. By this time I already had the first two tests in the nose. This was going to be an unscheduled third one at this point. The standard third one was not going to be until 8 days later. So if I refused the symptomatic swab test I would be in solitary confinement, for about 8 days.

Later that day they did come to do this symptomatic swab. It was an Asian nurse who did it. A man. They put the swab in my nose very deep, and rotated it for 10 seconds. 5 seconds in each direction. This was a terrible experience and I have never been through a virus test this severe. As time went by, I felt violated and assaulted.

Shortly after, like 10 minutes after that invasive nose swab I felt a pain in the lower part of my left eye, corresponding to the swab they put in the left nostril. This went on for hours. And to this very day, I continue to feel an irritation in my left nostril. This is going on now. It is June 114, 2021.

I felt very angry and unhappy that nobody cared at all about the facts and they were just determined to do this swab that hurt me. I felt very unhappy and violated. It is like everyone was just following orders and no one was following any common sense. And no doctor ordered this test. There is no GP in their right mind that would ever order a test like this because of a headache. I am at this facility in NZ against my will.

So basically effectively I was in solitary confinement. That night I was thinking about the whole situation and feeling somewhat scared. Were they going to take me away to a hospital somewhere? Were they going to break into my room if I did not cooperate. I did not know. I was worried, and then I began to realize I needed a lawyer.

What became clear, as I began to think about it in the middle of the night, was that the NZ government, is hell-bent on trying to find anything they can to prove they are right with what they are doing and desperate to prove positive covid cases at the border. They are grasping at straws, running the amplification level very high with this PCR test, to try to find false positives, in order to justify this whole unnecessary managed quarantine. If they were acting rationally, they would not have done the test because I simply did not have any symptoms at all related to this virus.

Now you may say, the NZ government is simply trying to protect the NZ population from some deadly virus. This is not a justification, to act irrationally and assault someone. And to do a test that no GP would ever under any circumstances order. This does not normally happen in normal life. Just because someone may have a cold or a flu, which I did not, is not a reason to assault them. And why are they doing a swab up the nose, in the most sensitive area of someone. This really is outrageous. It is not necessary. The simple fact is, there is not a deadly virus to justify this. The statistics show that this virus, is not any more harmful than the average flu.

It is now June 14, 2021, and I still feel an uncomfortable noticeable feeling in my left nostril. This is just not good at all. It is not painful but it is an uncomfortable continuous feeling. An a significant discomfort, is an awful feeling. I would expect this to go on for weeks. Maybe they have done permanent damage to my nose. It does seem like it.

I have heard this type of test in the nose, can result in a puncture of the brain.

I did not want to have any more tests. I called the nurses station and told them this that I did not want to undergo a fourth test at the end. In that call they said that the justification for what they have to do is that there is a pandemic. I said there is no pandemic, meaning that we are not facing a situation, worse than the flu or a not good flu season. They indicated disagreement with what I said. They had a nurse call me back and say if I did not have the fourth test I would have to stay an additional 14 days. So this would be a total of 28 days.

This 14 days can only be concluded to be retaliatory. I already had three tests. All negative. I am being isolated from everyone else there at the facility. Therefore, I should not be "catching" the virus from anyone else. If at the end of the stay I did not develop any symptoms of this virus, from being outside of the country, there simply is no reason to be holding me any longer at all because if I continue to remain asymptomatic the entire time and also at the very end, then it is clear I do not have this virus.

There were signs on the walls, and also newsletter given to us, saying that if we are doing something which causes us to leave our bubble and interact with others, then that is a reason, for us to lose our rights to go outside, and to receive a symptomatic swab up the nose. This threat was given to everyone including children. Since children were being mentioned.

I learned, that testing is done to children all the way down to six months old at the facility. They would put nose swabs in all of us. When I was down in the testing area, for the last test, there were young babies/children that mothers were holding that they were testing, and they were crying afterwards. Very sad.

I was a very afraid of getting a fourth test deep in my nose again with what happened on the third test, the painful experience and the continued symptoms.

So I thought that I could do the oral swab test which would be less invasive. By this time, I was already in contact with the lawyer Sue Grey to discuss what happened with the third test and the situation.

So I requested them to do an oral swab test by email and also made reference to my lawyer Sue Grey. This is a test that would be done on day 12. This test consists of an oral swab and a less invasive nasal swab (oropharyngeal + anterior nares swab).

After going through that test, indeed it was a much less invasive and not painful. So definitely that was the right choice. (I have email evidence of requesting this, and the facility acknowledging they will do this).

When the nurse talked me out of this type of test (oropharyngeal + anterior nares swab), the first time and said the deep nasal swab was easier, I now know what she meant. It is easier for them but it is painful for the one getting the test. So definitely the oral test is very recommended.

Every time I would look outside my room window, and see people walking in the same pattern through the parking area for exercise, everyone senselessly wearing masks, and we are all being monitored by these guards outside, it would always make me very sad, and it was clearly all about domination and control.

One has to ask themselves, why is there a requirement for any of us to be wearing masks outside with open airflow and being we are all separated by each other. There is absolutely no scientific justification. They could never prove even the slightest benefit from this. Being masks are ineffective and leak massively, the only answer is this is about domination and control.

And finally if you remain unconvinced by all this and thinking the NZ government is just protecting you, then understand we have always lived with things like the cold and the flu. This is no different. The data at this point in time is very clear the death rate from this virus is no different than the flu.

The fundamental problem with managed isolation, is what is there ultimate objective. They cannot keep this up forever. We are not dealing with anything more harmful than the flu. So why is it there is all of this irrational fear? And all of this economic harm and all of this cost? It takes a socialist mind to create managed isolation. They are running people's lives in managed isolation and doing a very poor job of it.

The basic problem is that they cannot keep up managed isolation endlessly and they are delaying the inevitable spread of the virus. However, more importantly, the virus must already be within New Zealand because they cannot possibly prevent the spread of a tiny virus. It will spread anyway. And to the extent that the virus has not spread widely within New Zealand, they are delaying the inevitable and they are delaying the New Zealand population from natural buildup of herd immunity.

And causing the population of this country to get too far behind the rest of the world with immune system development assuming the virus is not already here. And therefore exposing the country to a greater shock, when there is more widespread spread of this virus within NZ.

So they are doing far more harm than good. If the objective is to wait until there is 70% immunization with this vaccine which has all kinds of serious side effects and its own harm and can cause death, then this is no solution because this is going to kill and hurt vastly more people as compared to this virus which there is already effective treatment for without a vaccine. Prominent doctors are calling this vaccine a bio weapon.

Therefore managed isolation is only a tool of fear and control. It is a direct threat and pressure tactic against the New Zealand people and a very severe one, to pressure the population into taking the vaccine because it imposes a very very high cost, upon travel back into this country which also prevents people from leaving if they plan to come back. This should concern everyone.

The NZ government wants to pressure people to take the vaccine in order to set themselves free and allow free travel, and allow family members and friends to come, and allow visitors from overseas to come and revive the tourist industry in this country, but in effect, people who take the vaccine are going to enslave themselves more because they are giving up their health and well-being, to drug companies, and to the government, and doing harm to themselves.

If the New Zealand government really cares about the health and well-being of the New Zealand people, they instead would be focusing on effective treatments, hydroxychloroquine and ivermectin, vitamin C, zinc, vitamin D. And more importantly with all of the money they are throwing into this managed isolation, what if they invested this money in expanding upon and improving the existing healthcare facilities within the country. So it is very clear they have a hidden agenda here. This agenda is nothing more than domination and control.

After all of the above experience, I am going to be receiving a bill from the New Zealand government for $3200 to pay for my own time in their facility which I was forced into for no good reason. It was like being a prisoner there. I was completely restricted with my freedom. And at one time put into solitary confinement. I am already a large taxpayer in this country.

I plan to leave New Zealand. The country is losing a good person who has brought wealth into this country.

Commentary

In order for the NZ government to justify the managed quarantine they need to prove that when they get positive cases in these facilities, what on average is the severity of the symptoms. I would have to assume, in most cases the person is completely asymptomatic or nothing more than a mild cold. They never say. And then they have to prove, what exactly are they infected with. This would require independent verification. And I do not think even determining this is very easy.

And then they have to prove, that what people are allegedly infected with at the border, which they cannot prove, is not already in existence among the New Zealand population.

It would be extremely unreasonable to think that whatever people have which causes a positive PCR test at the border, does not already exist throughout the country.

It would be extremely unreasonable to believe that New Zealand is really keeping this virus (which has not even been proven to exist) out of this country.

When I came back home to Tauranga, I called a friend, and she said that she has been sick, for so many weeks, with cold and flu like symptoms. She was very afraid of going to a doctor because she did not want to undergo a nasal swab PCR test but did a phone consultation with an understanding doctor who would not do one. In other words, this person could easily have had a positive PCR test just like someone at the border. Whatever the New Zealand government is trying to keep out, already must exist.

With everything the NZ government is doing supposedly to protect the country (border closures, imprisonment, lockdowns, masks, detention of anyone with any alleged symptom, even including people with a headache) that somehow the government is protecting us, is just not true. To believe the country is "covid" contained, cannot possibly be true, with viruses which are so tiny.

People need to ask themselves do they want managed quarantine, lockdowns, masks, and then an alleged "vaccine", to cure all of this which has severe side effects, causes permanent disabilities, and eventually will kill people.

Or do they want to manage the situation like we have for centuries managed colds and flus.

And it does not matter, what anyone would like to think. Managed isolation/quarantine, is a violation of two sections of the Bill of Rights:

<https://www.legislation.govt.nz/act/public/1990/0109/latest/DLM225517.html>

<https://www.legislation.govt.nz/act/public/1990/0109/latest/DLM225524.html>

It is completely illegal and cannot be justified. The law cannot be violated. Therefore managed isolation must immediately come to an end. Otherwise, there no longer is any legitimate government in New Zealand. And at this point in time, there is not a legitimate government in New Zealand.

And has been very clearly and factually proven, New Zealand cannot hide from this alleged virus and is actually not successful with it at all. The country cannot escape reality. There will be normal virus spread, and this "vaccine" is no solution.
